

FUNDREDS ALL OVER NEW YORK

PARTICIPATION OVERVIEW

Use creativity to fight lead poisoning!

In the face of one of the most devastating environmental health threats to children, the Fundred Project is a creative currency that values the lives of children and a future free of lead poisoning.

IN THIS PACKET

- Participation Overview
- Fundred Templates
- Fundred Bundle Band

- More resources, including Fundred toolkit, videos and curriculum at fundred.org

What is a Fundred?

Each Fundred is an original work of art, hand-drawn on a provided template that is designed to look like US currency. Completed Fundreds are mailed to the Fundred Reserve in Washington DC.

Our goal is to collect millions of Fundreds and engage communities and educate policy-makers in the effort to end lead poisoning.

Creating a Fundred is a chance to make your voice heard, while together the Fundreds demonstrate the value we collectively place on healthier communities, poison-free homes, and the imagination of all children.

How can you get involved?

WHAT NEXT?

- Go to a local Fundred event, or plan your own!
- Create a video, zine, or other creative project to distribute to your community
- Contact your local representatives and start a letter writing campaign

- What are additional activities that you are interested in? Let us know what you are up to: @FundredProject, info@fundred.org.

The Fundred Project is a nationwide art project that seeks to amplify the voices of children and communities affected by lead poisoning. So far, nearly half a million people across all fifty states have created their own Fundreds that are filling up the Fundred Reserve in Washington DC.

As an extension of the 2018 Queens Museum exhibition of artist Mel Chin's artwork, All Over the Place, the Fundred Project is coming to NYC -- Fundreds All Over New York. Thousands of Fundreds from New York will be on view at the Queens Museum as part of the exhibition, join us as we activate Fundred-making across the city!

Fundreds All Over New York is made possible with lead support from The Kresge Foundation in partnership with MIT CoLab and SOURCE Studio.

Stay connected with the Fundred Project!
